Excerpt: .the forces of Madero in Mexico and was soon a colonel on the staff of the great liberator. Then came his chance to fight in the greatest war of all. In 1914 he joined the Canadian forces, served with valor until the winter of 1916 and was sent back to America, an invalid. But the United States entered the hostilities and O Hay was stirred to battle for the land of his adoption. He appeared at Plattsburg, disguised as a business man and neglecting to mention his military history. His identity was discovered and the old soldier was dismissed. But Colonel Wolf, a veteran regular army officer who had served with the soldier of fortune in Cuba, interceded and O Hay wore the American uniform to France, where he won another medal and was wounded so badly that he will be lame for life....
